He remarked rather wryly, "After all these years, theatre still doesn't get it - people in dramatic theatre think that musical actors can't do both."

Theatre Orangeville 'Kiss the Moon, Kiss the Sun'

Mr. Rosser, playing the part of Simon Garvey, the father of the child who is some years Holly's senior, said of the play, that while it deals with some heavy themes, "Norm (Foster) lets you off the hook with comedy. He says, 'It's okay to laugh.' There's a need for hope right now - this is a perfect time for this play.

He touches your heart so that you're saying, 'I know where this is coming from.'"

Ms Cadeau added to this: "It's a story about friendship and the adaptability of friendship. It touches the tender places."

Mr. Saltzman assured me, "People are going to laugh a lot."

Elizabeth Glenday, manager at Access Fitness in Orangeville, has long experience in the theatre as well. She takes on the role of Dr. Andrews, consultant to Robert and his mother, Claire. She is ecstatic to be working on this play at Theatre Orangeville. As she said, "The doctor facilitates things within the play." Of her own varied life between the theatre work that she does, the fitness shop where she works and her frequent role in the community as a clown, she says: "I absolutely adore everything that I do."

This is David Nairn's

favourite of Norm Foster's plays. It is the only play the theatre has ever reprised, but there are differences between this production and that of eight years ago - 2001.

Said Mr Nairn, "This is a different time - I'm a different person and director - better, more experienced. I wanted to do this play partly because of our relationship with Community Living Dufferin (CLD). I never knew challenged adults before and now I have friends who are challenged - so this has a very different perspective for me. It's a brave play with courageous actors."

Once again, the artistic directorship of Theatre Orangeville proves that theatre is a strong element of the community, reflecting its diverse nature, showing what constitutes the fabric of the whole.

Kiss the Moon, Kiss the Sun runs from April 16 (preview) to May 3. Tickets at the box office, as always. Don't miss it.

CHAMPIONSHIP CHALLENGE Orangeville Minor Hockey wrapped up their 2008-09 season this past weekend when they held their Day of Champions at the Alder Street Community Centre. In the Minor Atom championship (top), the Canadiens never let up from start to finish, defeating the Canucks 3-0. Minor Peeewe consolation (middle) play saw Edmonton drop Toronto 5-1 while the Canucks doubled up 4-2 over the Senators in Atom championship play (bottom).

Muskies pride

Continued from pgB1 through the emotion he had nothing but praise. "I am really proud of my guys, they never quit. They could have quit a long time ago, down in the series 3-0 and they prevailed. A lot of character, a lot of heart, a lot of soul in that room and it was there from day one."

Speaking on behalf of the players, captain

Sean Connor was almost at a loss for words. "We played our hearts out and to loose like that on the penalty kill leaves you just speechless" he said adding " its not so bad losing on a decent goal but something like that just takes the life right out of you." Looking forward though Connor knows this is one of those character builders that helps make a great team in the future. " We have a lot of young guys on the team, you just have to learn from it and move on".
